HOW NATURE HEALS TRAUMA & CHRONIC STRESS: A PRESENTATION OF THE RESEARCH & A PRACTICAL GUIDE TO WORKING WITH CLIENTS

Friday, November 15, 2024

1:00 pm – 4:00 pm

3 Continuing Education contact hours for NYS licensed social workers

Instructor: Ellen Blauox, LCSW-R, Founder, YOUR Gathering Space

Workshop Description:

Virtually every human being will experience some form of trauma and/or chronic stress at least once in their lifetime. In addition to being a universal human experience, trauma and chronic stress has the potential to provide an opportunity for change, creating meaning and enhancing our sense of purpose. Within nature, supportive relationships and with access to the proper tools, humans can build or restore emotional, physical and spiritual balance. This workshop's immersive, experiential and interactive format provides the foundation for learning and integrating such evidence-based tools. By framing concrete interventions within the context of the scientific research, Ellen will teach simple, practical skills that clinicians can implement immediately, thereby supporting their clients' healing the wounds and scars of trauma. Using various teaching and practice methods from nature therapy, participants will learn to support clients in all the realms impacted by trauma: emotions -the improvement of their mood; somatization -decreasing stress hormones; and cognitive -reducing rumination, thereby promoting mind/body healing.

SEXUAL ISSUES IN COUPLES THERAPY

Friday, January 10, 2025

1:00 pm – 4:00 pm

3 Continuing Education contact hours for NYS licensed social workers

Instructor: Cynthia G. Pizzulli, PhD, LCSW

Workshop Description:

Despite being seasoned couples therapists, many practitioners find themselves 'out of their comfort zone' when it comes to treating sexual problems among their clients. Even when presenting problems are not sex-related, the non-sexual aspects of a relationship impact the sexual aspects of a relationship (and vice-versa). This workshop is for clinicians that work with couples and wish to gain more competence with the topic of sex and incorporate more specific approaches to dealing with sexual issues in their practices. Some topics that will be explored: low-sex and sex-less relationships, orgasmic and erectile difficulties, infidelity, same and different gendered partner challenges, sexual response.

Fee: $65
$55 (SSW Alumni, SBU employee, or current Practicum Instructor)

TEACHING SELF COMPASSION IN THE TREATMENT OF TRAUMA, DEPRESSION & ANXIETY IN CLINICAL PRACTICE WITH ADULTS

Friday, January 24, 2025

1:00 pm – 4:00 pm

3 Continuing Education contact hours for NYS licensed social workers

Instructor: Ellen Blauox, LCSW-R, Founder, YOUR Gathering Space

Workshop Description:

This workshop will teach an important, often disregarded tool that will allow your clients to enhance their capacity to cope with life's challenges, as well as to build and sustain resilience. One of the most powerful (and misunderstood) tools for ameliorating the devastating effects of self-comparison, envy and shame; Self-Compassion has been proven to be effective in reducing the troubling need for perfectionism, thereby enhancing self-worth, improving daily functioning and overall well-being.

We will debunk the myths around self-compassion and research will be presented about this revolutionary source for coping. Additionally, skills for managing difficult emotions, unhelpful thought patterns & lack of motivation will be taught. Special attention and adaptations will be paid to the treatment of individuals living with chronic stress and survivors of trauma. This workshop is interactive and will consist of a didactic component, as well as experiential exercises for practicing interventions.
