

- A Three-part Educational Series -

What Ought To Be: Cultural Proficiency, and Trans Care Across the Lifespan: Trans 101, Client Engagement, and CBT

Mondays:

October 24, January 23, 2017, (Spring 2017 date TBA)
9:00 am – 1:00 pm

4 Continuing Education contact hours per session
for licensed social workers

Presenter:

Donna Riley, Ph.D, LCSW-R

Adjunct Instructor, School of Social Welfare, Stony Brook University; Clinician, The Freedman Center for Clinical Social Work

These courses may be taken individually or, for a more dynamic and comprehensive look into this topic, you may choose to attend all three sessions.

Series Overview:

Transgender and Gender Non-Conforming (TGNC) people are those who have a gender identity that is not fully aligned with their sex assigned at birth. They often face widespread discrimination and mistreatment within the healthcare system because providers may lack adequate training. Much of the existing information regarding TGNC has been extrapolated from studies of people who are lesbians, gay and bisexuals (LGB).

While many of the issues may overlap, there is a gap in the literature and therefore understanding regarding issues specific to the lives of transgender persons. This workshop is intended to enhance social workers' understanding of (TGNC) status as a lived human experience. This three-part series can help social workers become more culturally and clinically proficient in their work with TGNC individuals across their lifespan.

Cost per session:

$80

$70 (current Field Instructors, Alumni of SSW or SBU employees)

- Part 2 of 3 Sessions Series -

Clinical Skills Working with TGNC Children and Youth

Monday, January 23, 2017

9:00 am – 1:00 pm

4 Continuing Education contact hours for licensed social workers

Workshop Description:

Research has illuminated the fact that the two most prominent times in a TGNC person's life where gender dysphoria arises is 3-5 years old and at puberty. When confronted by a gender variant child, a parent may be caught very much off guard, with no ability to rehearse the best response to such an unanticipated circumstance. In addition, for a parent, it may feel like a loss of the daughter or son to whom they became so bonded. Moreover, some families are aware of their child's gender dysphoria in early childhood while others are surprised to learn about it when their child is in their teens. In this workshop we will work to help create a safe and supportive environment for TGNC individuals and their families to grow and thrive in life.

- Part 3 of 3 Sessions Series -

Clinical Skills Working with TGNC: Coming Out Later in Life

Spring 2017 date TBA

4 Continuing Education contact hours for licensed social workers

Workshop Description:

Much of the current research has focused on gender-nonconforming children or on transsexuals seeking gender confirmation surgery (GCS). Recent research has noted that many male-to-female identified persons are contemplating gender transitions in their later years. This workshop will address the importance of working with elder TGNC individuals and will present specific modalities in working with the TGNC Elders.
